

SCHOOLS ARE INVITED to participate in the public engagement for the new B.C. HUMAN RIGHTS COMMISSION

Participation is optional. Classes that might be interested:

Social Justice 12

Law 12

Social Studies 10

Students, classes or small groups are welcome to add their thoughts online about:

- privilege and power
- diverse belief systems and worldviews of minoritized groups
- traditional and unceded territories of indigenous peoples
- inclusive and non-inclusive language connections between social justice issues
- connections between and among issues like race, poverty, LGBTQ, status of women, environmental and ecological justice, peace and globalization, disabilities, other marginalized and vulnerable groups past and present social injustices in Canada and in the world, their possible causes, and their lasting impact on individuals, groups, and society
- structures and powers of the federal and provincial courts and administrative tribunals

Bring your knowledge of policies and practices of institutions and systems roles of governmental and non-governmental organizations in issues of social justice and injustice, international laws, UN resolutions and declarations, the Constitution of Canada and the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms and legislation concerning First Peoples to the conversation.

Join the online conversation at engage.gov.bc.ca/bchumanrights

